

MITCHELL ON STAND

Operators Show They Want Public Opinion With Them--Union President Makes a Splendid Witness Before Commission.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 17.—The work of the hearing testimony by the anthracite coal strike commission is not proceeding as rapidly as the commissioners desire, and they have agreed that they will not permit counsel on either side to go over ground already covered. In view of President Mitchell's competency as a witness and his ability to elucidate clearly on many of the coal problems, he will likely be continued on the stand for some time yet. The attorneys of the various coal companies have expressed a desire to take a "fall" out of Mitchell, only as one of the attorneys said this morning, he does not seem to "fall."

Mitchell has been a wonderful witness. When called to the stand this morning for further cross-examination by Wayne MacVeagh, counsel of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, the fine fencing match started Saturday afternoon was begun again. The commission will probably take the testimony of operators in Philadelphia.

Wayne MacVeagh, in opening his fire of questions this morning on President Mitchell re-extracts from the constitution of the operative plasterers society. Among the articles read was one that if any foreman was found rushing his men he would be fined $50 and not recognized as a foreman for three years. Other similar articles were read and MacVeagh asked Mitchell if he countenanced such articles.

"The association you name I know nothing of. The United Mine Workers have no such rules. Personally, I do not approve of such rules."

"Would you be surprised to learn that 500,000 people on the Atlantic seaboard are unable to pay the present price of coal?"

"I would not."

"Well, then, have you not thought of this when you make your demands?"

"I have, but as I have said, we have nothing to do with the selling price of coal."

"You believe that if we grant your demands we will increase the price of coal?"

"Yes; and I believe you will do it anyway, whether we get the increase or not."

MacVeagh took up the question of armed guards at the mines and the demands of the miners that they be done away with by legislative enactment. In reply to an opinion on this point, Mitchell said:

"Objections to armed guards date back to the affair at Homestead where many people were injured. If a man's house is in danger I think he should first apply for protection from the city and if necessary the state. The armed guards should be qualified and men of character should be carefully selected. I think the authorities of the state are perfectly competent to take care of property."

"Don't you know that the treatment accorded in this region in the last five months has been a veritable fore-taste of hell?"

"I did not."

"You will before we get through with you," was MacVeagh's reply.

Mitchell in reply to a question said that he regretted to say that there was some lawlessness in the strike but in many cases it was grossly exaggerated by reports.

MacVeagh dismissed the question of armed guards and took up the question of eight hour day again. He read from a demand of the United Mine Workers that no man shall work more than 8 hours a day.

"Do you believe that a man should be compelled not to work over eight hours?"

"While the operators limit us to 39 hours, it is only a question of limitation," was Mitchell's answer.

"Do you believe that if Abraham Lincoln had been limited to 8 hours and not permitted to work 14 hours as he did to obtain money to buy spoiling boots and readers he would have been able to become the President of the United States?" asked MacVeagh.

"Why, if Abraham Lincoln had worked in the coal mines he would have been the strongest advocate of the eight hour day that I know of."

President Mitchell outlined carefully the organization of the United Mine Workers and how the members were enlisted. He gave details of assessments. He said the organization was not a secret one. Mitchell said that the membership books were always open to employers who did not discriminate against union labor.

Scranton, Pa., Nov. 17.—The meetings of the anthracite strike commission thus far show that the operators want public opinion with them, a very notable change at heart. David Wilcox, general counsel for the Delaware and Hudson, during his cross-examination of President Mitchell, talked to the newspaper gallery more than he did to the commission, and Hon. Wayne MacVeagh has gone Mr. Wilcox several better. For almost every question he asks Mr. Mitchell he makes a little speech, a comment or something that is intended not so much for the commission as for the public, which it is hoped to reach through the newspapers. Every facility for accurately reporting these speeches is afforded by the operators' press agents. Thus far the miners have made an admirable showing before the commission, and their President, John Mitchell, has proved himself a match for the greatest combination of legal talent this country has ever seen massed together. The contentions of Mitchell, in his examination in chief, have not yet been seriously disturbed. His cross-examination will probably consume two or three days.

President Mitchell, of the United Mine Workers, declines to say whether he would favor the incorporation of the union if it is recommended by the Strike Committee with a view to then having it recognized by the operators. It is said here that members of the commission approve this; that they realize the great barrier now in the way of recognition of the union is the fact that it is not a tangible body; that the operators cannot compel it to keep contracts or punish it for violation of them. Some of the members of the commission believe, it is said, that if the operators were assured the union would become incorporated they would be persuaded, if the commission recommended, to recognize it.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Rumors that the anthracite coal miners will go on another strike and that the labors of the arbitration commission appointed by President Roosevelt will come to naught, have been afloat for some days, but have attracted little attention here or at Scranton. The reason alleged for the coming strike is the hostile attitude persisted in toward the miners' union by the operators. Rumor of a possible strike is thought to have been sent out for stock jobbing purposes.

WIFE

Claims Husband Has Been Counterfeiting Nickel Coins.

East Liverpool, Nov. 17.—Counterfeit nickels by tens of thousands have been in circulation in this city for months.

Sunday Mrs. George P. McGillivray appeared in Justice McCarron's court, and after filing an affidavit charging her husband with desertion and non-support of their 2-year-old child, filed another, charging him with having manufactured counterfeit money.

She alleges that for months he has been engaged in that pursuit a great portion of his spare time. He made $4 a day at the pottery, where he worked, and about the same amount, it is alleged, from spurious coin.

McGillivray has left the city, and has written his wife that he will never return.

CANNON

Will Probably be the Next Speaker --- That's the Way It Looks.

Washington, Nov. 17.—"Uncle Joe Cannon in a walk." That seems to be the Washington view of the speaker-ship contest. The Washington Post (Independent) is among the first to concede the outcome. Congressman Grosvenor of Ohio of prophetic vision, saw Uncle Joe wielding the gavel with Babcock and Dalzell and Payne and Sherman and Burton and all other candidates back in their accustomed seats.

Dr. Hoff's famous prescription, together with a bottle of medicine, and 24 page handbook, containing the Journal's account of the cure as it progressed, is being sent out free to consumptives and all sufferers from bronchitis, asthma and catarrh by the Journal Research Society, 671 American Tract building, New York City.

FATHER

Of Rodella Bain Learns of His Daughter's Trouble and Will Return Home.

Wheeling, W. Va., Nov. 17.—After a mysterious absence of 17 years, Russell Bain the father of Rodella Bain, who, the police claimed, confessed having killed Gay Smith, has been heard from, adding another chapter to the romantic and tragic history of the family. He has written to his wife from Friendly Harbor, Washington, and says he read of Rodella's connection with the murder sensation, and determined to come back home. One night in 1885 Russell Bain left his home and since has been mourned as dead. No satisfactory theory for his strange act developed. But his daughter's trouble has worked the charm, and the family will once more be reunited.

There is a marked improvement in the condition of the eyes of President Roosevelt's son.

A Columbus paper Sunday published the total vote to be $11,442, but it is believed this afternoon that there are some errors in the figures. From the best information obtainable this afternoon the vote will be somewhere between $11,000 and $11,500. Heretofore the estimates have been nearer $80,000 but the unexpected increase was in the larger counties. The official vote is expected Tuesday.

FLY BITE FATAL

New York, Nov. 17.—From the effect of a fly bite on the side of his nose, Herman Kaufman, four years old, the healthy, ruddy checked son of Herman Kaufman, a tobacconist of No. 539 Caulwell avenue, the Bronx, died Friday morning after forty-eight hours of agony. Coroner's physician Riegel issued a certificate of death yesterday giving septicaemia as the cause of death. From the little brother and sister of Herman he learned that a dead sheep lay for several days in a lot near the Kaufman home. Herman went near the carcass and a companion threw a stone at it. This disturbed a cloud of blue-bottle flies and they took wing. It is supposed one bit Herman and inoculated him with virus from the decayed sheep.

AZTEC WEALTH IS DISCOVERED

Americans by Means of a Chart Find a Cavern of Fabulous Treasure in Mexico.

Hermosillo, Mex., Nov. 15.—A remarkable story of the discovery of hidden Aztec treasure of fabulous value has just been reported at Tepic.

A party of Americans headed by an archeologist named Haverick several weeks ago, by means of a chart which Haverick claimed to have copied from an Aztec stone tablet in the national museum in the City of Mexico, located a vast cavern in a mountain near Yescas. Immense stone images stood about this chamber. In one end was a handsome altar, above which burned a bright flame supplied by natural gas from a crevice in the wall. It has probably been burning for many centuries. In a chamber adjoining was found a great store of ornaments and utensils.

Twelve burros were required to transport the articles to San Blas, where they were shipped to San Francisco, accompanied by the Americans. It is said to be the largest and most valuable collection of ancient relics ever discovered in Mexico.

CHAFFEE

Says Petty Monarchs Can be Bought With Pensions--General in Chicago Monday.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Acting Governor Wright and General Chaffee, civil and military rulers of the Philippines, arrived in Chicago this morning. Mrs. Chaffee is quite ill. Of the Philippines, General Chaffee said: "After demonstrating to the natives that the United States is a military power, capable of thoroughly subjugating them, and that they have no other ally in battle but the United States, the only monarchs can be bought with pensions. Objectionable traitors can be got rid of in the same way. If the Americans show the natives that the Filipinos can make money by trading, the natives will abandon their subjects, and they will be gone."

Both Chaffee was killed and a dozen men were killed in a battle at Chicago last night.

SPECTACULAR FIRE

Destroys Armour Plant at Sioux City, Entailing Loss of Nearly a Million--About 600 Men Out of Work.

Sioux City, Iowa, Nov. 17.—The big plant of Armour & Company, occupying three and one-half acres, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday; loss, $800,000; insurance $721,500. The cause of the fire which will throw 600 men out of employment all winter, is said to have been either spontaneous combustion or an imperfect dryer.

The fire presented a most spectacular appearance. The big beef house, where 500 carcasses were hanging, caught fire at 2 o'clock. By this time, the entire plant, except the hog house, was a lake of fire. The roar was terrible. The country for miles around was lighted up.

Suddenly came a terrific explosion, followed quickly by another and then another. Twenty-four drums of one hundred pounds of ammonia each, exploded, before the reserve in the ammonia cistern was reached. That ignition almost raised the entire plant from its foundation.

When the hog house caught fire all streams were turned in that direction, but the water seemed like oil. In the building were 3,500 dressed hogs and 2,500,000 pounds of pork product.

After the fire got a good headway in the hog house all hope of saving any part of the plant was abandoned. The shops, chicken packing plants, ice house and ice run ways and smaller department houses were consumed in quick succession. At 3 o'clock the fire continued with unchecked fury. The efforts of the firemen seemed without result. The terrible roaring continued, high brick walls crumbled and firewalls were absolutely valueless.

From a spectacular point the fire was a magnificent sight. At 2:25 the fire department had given up the fight. It was apparent that all of its efforts were useless and the entire plant would be destroyed.

No one was seriously hurt.

REUNITED AFTER 50 YEARS

Three Sons Abducted in 1849 Find Their Aged Mother in County Alms House at Kokomo, Indiana.

Kokomo, Ind., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Catherine Roach, an aged inmate of the county poorhouse, has just been reunited to her three sons, who were abducted from her more than a half-century ago. The sons are wealthy residents of Kearney, Mo., and will at once take her to their home.

In 1849, during the rush to the gold fields, the three boys, George, William and Lewis, aged 2 and 3 years, were abducted at the instance of their father and taken to California. The children were too young to remember the abandoned mother. The father died in 1865 without disclosing his identity or telling the children of their mother, and leaving the boys alone in the world, without home, relatives or friends. More than 50 years the sons lived in ignorance of the existence of a mother. The abandoned wife received word through a neighbor who accompanied the "forty-niners" that her husband and her children had been massacred by Indians. This report was false, but the wife and mother believed it true.

For several years the sons, who prospered in the West, have tried to fathom the mystery of their lives. By accident it was learned that their father had once lived in Indiana. All three came here Saturday and found the mother still alive, but an inmate of the county house, a subject of charity. She is now past the age of 90 years. She had toiled on as the years went by, hoping against hope that some day she might see her kindred children, and when she became too old to work she was taken to the poorhouse. It was at that place the sons found her.

BEAR HUNT A FIZZLE

But the President is Having a Great Time Down in Mississippi Just the Same--To Leave Wednesday.

Smokes, Miss., Nov. 17.—The President Sunday went riding alone on the south side of the Sunflower river. Several members of the party spent the day hunting deer. The river men of the party enjoying their lives. The party will reach Memphis Wednesday morning of the Yazoo, which would stop any craft drawing over six inches.

The Chicago party, which is hunting day. The menu included roast bear with Bob Bobo's pack of hounds, 70 miles north of here, is reported to have had better luck than the President's party, according to a message open air. The plates and the cups received here. The party during the last week bagged 11 deer and four bears.

Holt Collier's dander is up and he vows that the "Colonel" will not go home empty handed. His dogs had a good rest and were in fine condition to resume the chase today. It has turned colder and rain is falling.

A report circulated among the colored people that the President was coming to Smokes Sunday attracted about 1000 negroes to the station. They waited here until dark before they would be convinced that the report was incorrect.

Hard, Brutal, Arrogant.

Arrogance, suspicion, brutal envy of the well-to-do, brutal indifference toward those who are not well to do, the hard refusal to consider the limits of beneficent action, the base appeal to the spirit of selfish greed, whether it take the form of plunder of the fortunate or of oppression of the unfortunate—these and from all kindred vices this nation must be kept free if it is to remain in its present position in the forefront of the peoples of mankind. — President Roosevelt's New York speech.

In their answers to the miners' demands and statement of grievances the anthracite coal mine operators with one accord lay more stress and emphasis upon their refusal to recognize the United Mine Workers of America than upon any and everything else.

It is not too much to say that they do this gratuitously, as they have no reason so far as the public is informed to suppose that the commission means to pass on any question which is barred by the terms of their own proposal.

If Mr. Mitchell asks for the recognition of his labor organization the rational and dignified thing for the operators to do is to state simply that they are unwilling to deal with that organization and to point out that they have not agreed to submit to the commission the question of its recognition. If in face of this statement the commission offers to go into that question they can submit their objections.

Instead of this they choose to assume an attitude of arrogance, refusing to have anything whatever to do with Mr. Mitchell's organization and saying many needlessly offensive things about it.

They thus invite the remark that they are in no position to attack labor organizations even if they are as bad as their worst enemies say they are. The operators themselves are organized to fleece the public on one side and to get out of the mine workers as much as possible for as little as possible.

Their organization exists and does its pleasure in defiance of law. If the workers' organization is extralegal and irresponsible, as the operators claim, the latter's organization is illegal and criminal. This is not mere assertion. It is a fact certified to by two official bodies—the industrial commission and the interstate commerce commission.

This illegal operators' organization puts up the price of anthracite arbitrarily and it has heretofore fixed the wages of mine workers arbitrarily.

There is only limited truth in the claim of the operators that soft coal competition prevents them from making arbitrary prices for hard coal. Very likely they could not put up the price to $20 a ton without losing most of the market, but recent events have made it pretty clear that soft coal competition is not formidable and not sharp enough to compel the anthracite operators to make reasonable figures.

Evidence is not wanting that by their unlawful combine stifling competition among themselves they are wresting exorbitant prices from the public on the one side and paying less than its worth for the services of the men in their employ.

When they arrogantly refuse to have anything to do with a labor organization on the ground that it is unreasonable, tyrannical and lawless we have a clear case of the devil rebuking sin. It would seem to be about time to apply the law to the "unreasonable, tyrannical and lawless operators."

STRONG SERMON

Preached Sunday Night by Rev. H. N. Miller, at Fourth Street Church of Christ.

Rev. H. Newton Miller, of the Fourth Street Church of Christ, preached a strong sermon Sunday night to a large congregation, taking for his text the 12th verse of the 14th chapter of Proverbs: "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the ends thereof are death."

The preacher said that there were many ways which people followed and probably thought they were in the right path, but would find maybe too late, that they led to ruin. Three of these he pointed out and expatiated upon, the ways of Ignorance, Worldliness and known and open sin.

The only right way was that laid down in the Gospel, following Christ, who said: "I am the Way," and the ignorance of the Way of those who can know, will be no excuse for not walking therein. Those who let the love of money or the pursuing of worldly pleasures, many of them not sinful in themselves, interfere or hinder them in their progress along that narrow way, are going along the broad road which leads to death.

The third way leads to death in this world, and the eternal loss of happiness in the next.

Mr. Miller is a young man who brings to the pulpit an earnestness of manner, a clear logical mind, a pleasing delivery and elegant diction. His sermons are of the kind which make men think, and have brought and will bring many who wish to travel in the right way.

Jas. Rose, 22, colored porter at Yonkers, N. Y., accidentally wounded his wife and killed him Sunday night. Jealousy.

GENERAL MOLENEUX'S JOY.

How He Expressed It When His Son Roland Was Acquitted.

General Molineux was the happiest man in the courtroom of the criminal court building in New York the other day. The jury had just pronounced his son, Roland R. Molineux, who had been charged with the murder of Mrs. Katharine J. Adams, an innocent man. "Look here!" said General Molineux, leaning over to where the New York World reporter was seated. "Look here! I want to tell you just how I feel. I know you would like to know. I have it in my mind. It has been in my mind ever since the jury marched in, and I want to tell you."

Then, putting his mouth to the reporter's ear, the general whispered, "The strike is over, the battle is won—General Molineux halted for a moment."

"Write that down. Write that down," said he. "I don't want you to forget as long as you live."

Then, turning to the reporter, he said: "Here! Give me your pencil and a slip of paper and I will write down just what I feel."

The general then wrote: "The strike is over, the battle done, and might has lost, but right has won."

"There you are," said General Molineux. "That is what I want to say to the world. And now why shouldn't I feel that way? Does it not tell just exactly what has happened in this case? I say it does."

"Did you think the jury would come in as quickly as it did?" was asked.

"I did," replied General Molineux. "I said right along that if we were ever able to put our case before a fair minded judge and before a fair minded jury my boy would be acquitted. And you see the result. Am I delighted? Well, I feel like a two-year-old now. Justice has been done at last. It was a long time coming, but when it did come it came in a hurry. Now we are going home to Brooklyn, and there I shall take the boy."

General Molineux had started to leave the courtroom when Apple Mary rushed up and threw her arms around the old fighter.

"General," shouted Apple Mary, "let me hug you! Oh, I am so glad!"

"Mary," said General Molineux after he had freed himself from the embrace—"Mary, you are the finest prophet I ever met. You told me that the boy would go home this afternoon, and I endorse every word you say. Good-by, Mary, and God bless you!"

"She is a good soul," said General Molineux. "She has cheered me up ever so many times."

General Molineux, after shaking hands with many more people, turned to the reporter again and said:

"Now, we must not forget to thank the good Lord in heaven for this. You know he has been good to us. It is true we have been tried severely, but he knows best what is good. His will be done, and it was his will that my boy's innocence should be proved. Our prayers have been answered. And now we are going to take the boy back to his mother."

SQUIRRELS FOR MUFFS.

Origin of the Fashionable Fad in Paris.

"Where do all the squirrels come from that supply muffs and neck pieces to the women in Fifth avenue?" has been asked, says the New York Press. If one contemplates a purchase of squirrel fur, one will not believe the skins are plentiful, because the American supply is excessively short. Like many of the more costly furs, the thick, soft squirrel comes from northeast Russia and Siberia, and the markets of London receive only a small part of the annual trappings. The Russians use fur under all conditions, and this demand cuts down the world's supply. Gray squirrels are not plentiful even in the arctic district, and cold weather and privation must be borne in an effort to trap the wary animals. The desirable ones haunt only cold regions, and the playful variety that is seen in Central park would make impossible hats and coats.

It was an astute fur dealer in New York city who saw last winter a woman in a Fifth avenue restaurant enveloped in this silvery fur. Even the skirt was gray squirrel. "Too conspicuous," muttered the fur dealer, but he asked who was the wearer of this extraordinary costume. "Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt" was the reply. It was enough. From that day until this autumn the dealer has been buying every available gray squirrel skin. The fad followed naturally, and now the demand for squirrel surpasses bread and even salted. It is said the single clump of the Vanderbilt coat was the basis of a fortune for the fur dealer.

A FAMILY SYNDICATE.

Chicago Man's Novel Idea to Keep His Son's In Business.

After a residence in Chicago of sixteen years Frank H. Cooper announces that he is to move to New York. Since he retired from Siegel, Cooper & Co. Mr. Cooper has been interested in a medical concern. He also has large interests in the Siegel-Cooper company of New York.

"It is my purpose," said he to a representative of the New York World, "to form what might be termed a family syndicate to handle all the business in which I and my sons may be engaged. I think that is a new idea—a syndicate in one family. I expect to soon begin the manufacture of a type-writer and of an adding machine."

"I always have thought that it was unfortunate that one son in a family should grow to be a rich man, while another might be unsuccessful. I now recall the case of a man in this city (Chicago) who is working for $10 a week, while his brother is worth millions. I do not think that is right, and I do not want anything like that among my boys."

SOCIALISM'S IRRESISTIBILITY.

Dr. Lyman Abbott Says the Movement Must Not Be Resisted.

"Socialism in this country I believe to be irresistible, and I believe that it ought not to be resisted," said Lyman Abbott at Yale the other night, according to a New Haven dispatch to the New York American.

"Herbert Spencer wrote fifty years ago that socialism could be prevented by nothing but civil war, bloodshed and despotism. I do not agree with this. I believe that this, like every great question, will be debated by the American public and settled without bloodshed."

"You may rightly think that it is easier to settle this question on the platform than in the factory. The real solution has to be made in the factory. The organization of labor is just as necessary as the organization of capital. The question is, 'Shall it be organized by plutocracy or democracy?'"

"The peril to America is not in the greatness of the organization, but in the direction which it will take. We as a people must control both organized capital and organized labor. A government of the people must control the necessities of life. It is just as necessary to prevent crime in corporations as it is in labor unions. Men are of more value than money, and we must find a way to prove it."

"There are 19,000 stockholders in the Pennsylvania Railroad company; there are 19,000 employees of the road. The owners are organized. Why should not the employees be organized? The trades unions answer this by saying: 'The man of great business ability and much money puts his money into the stock of a company, and the widow with no business knowledge and little money puts her money into the same company, and all is managed by a board of directors which both the rich business man and the widow with little money trust to do their business honestly.'"

"So, too, the workmen—one a good one, able to earn large wages, the poorer one able to earn less wages—believing that it will be better for both and all, pool their abilities and issues and form a union and place its direction in the hands of their most competent man, just as the rich man and the poor widow pool their money and place it in charge of directors."

"But we must control, as a people, these organizations, both of capital and of labor. Government of the people must prevent monopoly in the life necessities by law and regulation and must prevent crime in corporation or in labor unions. Law must be alike enforced for the rich and the poor, the employer and the employee."

"It is my purpose," said he to a representative of the New York World, "to form what might be termed a family syndicate to handle all the business in which I and my sons may be engaged. I think that is a new idea—a syndicate in one family. I expect to soon begin the manufacture of a type-writer and of an adding machine."

"I always have thought that it was unfortunate that one son in a family should grow to be a rich man, while another might be unsuccessful. I now recall the case of a man in this city (Chicago) who is working for $10 a week, while his brother is worth millions. I do not think that is right, and I do not want anything like that among my boys."

FELL

To Bottom of Steps Cutting His Head Painfully—Mr. E. M. Montgomery Hurt.

Mr. E. M. Montgomery, the well known proprietor of the Excelsior Roller Mills, had the misfortune to meet with a severe and painful accident on Sunday. He had gone down into the cellar and had started to come up stairs when he suddenly became dizzy and felt that he was going to faint. He managed to reach the steps leading to the rooms above, when he lost consciousness and fell to the bottom of the steps. In falling he struck the corner of one of the stone steps, cutting an ugly gash in his forehead, and otherwise injuring his head and face. When found he was lying at the foot of the steps, with his head on the ground and his feet on the steps, and blood gushing from the wound in his head. Dr. W. M. Baldwin was immediately called in and the injured man carried to his room where his hurts were attended to. Mr. Montgomery informed an Advocate reporter that he is troubled at times with gas on his stomach, which gives him palpitation of the heart, and it was one of these attacks which caused him to faint and fall. At this writing Mr. Montgomery is resting easy and is getting along nicely.

CUBA'S NEGRO PROBLEM

Aims of Members of the Race Now Well Organized.

THEY INSIST ON EQUAL RIGHTS.

Powerful Influence of Their Leader, Juan Gualberto Gomez, One of the Island's Most Brilliant Orators. Difficulty of Foreseeing Outcome of the Agitation.

The negro question, which has always been a matter of more or less apprehension in Cuba, is now assuming more prominence than ever before, writes the Havana correspondent of the New York Evening Post. The warmings of the colored element have been widespread ever since the Americans assumed control of Cuba, but because the race was unorganized its discontent was not then recognized as important. There are those who have predicted trouble along color lines, and some conservative men have gone so far as to predict a race war in Cuba, but whether or not the discontent of the colored race in Cuba was of importance before the fact confronts the new republic that it is of importance today because the heretofore unorganized people have been formed into clubs and societies, have established newspapers and are now in a condition to make demands.

Never before has the negro question been so important in the country as it is today. The Veteranos de Color (Colored Veterans) have issued a formal declaration of their intentions and aims. They say that the club, heretofore known by that name, no longer exists, that all who fought in the Cuban army are veterans and that they must belong to the same club irrespective of color. There have always been two veterans' clubs, one of which had a membership made up of entirely whites and the other constituted of the negroes.

The colored people in Cuba feel that they have been entirely ignored by the "Cuba Libre" for which they fought, probably harder than their white brethren, and they demand that they be dealt with as other Cubans are. During the administration of the American military authorities they refrained from coming forward, they say, because of what is termed the national dislike of the United States for the colored man, but now that their government is in the hands of the Cubans the negroes intend to have what they claim are their just dues.

The leader of the colored race here is Senor Juan Gualberto Gomez, one of the most brilliant orators and one of the most able editorial writers on the island. His father was a Spaniard, but every feature of the negro is plainly marked on his face. His mother was a slave brought from Africa. He is devoted to the colored people. Since the establishment of the Cuban republic he has insisted throughout that his race be recognized and be given its share of patronage. He has gone so far as to demand that President Palma appoint a member of the colored race as a cabinet officer.

What will be the result of this agitation of the negro question in Cuba it is difficult to predict. Already it is asked whether President Palma will invite colored people to his reception, which will soon be held at the palace. If he does, the best element of Cuban society will probably remain away, for there exists a distinct color line. If he does not, he will call down on his head all the vituperation of which the fluent pen of Gomez is capable, and this may prove embarrassing and widen the breach that already exists.

Will the negroes attempt force to accomplish their ends? This is a question many times asked. The negroes themselves say no. They say that this will not be necessary. One of the most prominent leaders of the colored movement, with a high military rank, stated in answer to a question as to the negroes' ambitions:

"We know that it is for our interests to have the quietest and most peaceful conditions on the island. We realize that if there was any trouble here the United States will send its army back, and that is something that the Cuban colored man does not want and is therefore willing to overlook a multitude of sins of his own countrymen. We read nearly every day of how the colored man is treated in your country, and for this reason, if for no other, we will keep order ourselves, even if our natural patriotism should not cause us to. But the colored veteran is not getting justice here, and we have decided to adopt quiet but effective measures to improve this condition."

Plans for the Rhodes Scholarships.

Professor William P. Thayer of Montreal recently returned from a European trip, where he studied the different school systems. The other day he told a reporter of the New York Tribune about the plans for students availing themselves of the Cecil Rhodes bequest. He said: "The bequest for the first year when it will come into operation will provide for from seventy to seventy-five students, the same number in the second year and thirty in the third year. The yearly number thereafter will be about thirty. Each college is prepared to take from two to five graduate scholars in addition every year. This would give the smaller colleges from six, increasing up to fifteen for the larger ones which take the three year scholarships. Oxford has twenty colleges, and there are from eighty to 200 undergraduates in each college."

FOR EVENING WEAR.

Soft, Delicate Materials Are the Proper Thing.

Evening toilets are invariably made from soft fabrics, and silks which stand alone are no longer fashionable. Crepe de chine is an ideal material for evening wear and is now produced at quite reasonable prices, with all its softness and much of its silky effect retained. Pale delicate colorings are exquisite in crepe de chine, and either chiffon or lace with touches of colored velvet is lovely for trimming purposes.

A most stylish evening gown can be made from black crepe de chine and if arranged with a short, loose bolero cut low in the neck can be converted into a dinner or day gown by having one transparent slip and another with full tucked sleeves and a yoke.

This type of gown is most useful during the season and can be so arranged that the only expense arises from the slip bodies, which may easily be made at home and which do not take much material.

A dainty gown for a young girl is here shown. The material can be any dotted thin goods. It is made over pale blue silk and ornamented with narrow blue ribbons. JUDIC CHOLET.

FASHION NOTES.

The New Tailor Made Suits—According to Plaited Flouncers.

According plaited flouncers are being revived or the plaited skirt is set into a fancy yoke covering the hips and made perfectly tight fitting. Tightly shaped skirts of lace finished in deep scallops flow out over underskirts edged with many frills of chiffon or soft satin. The new tailor made suits are models of daintiness, and none is complete without some trifling touch of embroidery.

Stiff costumes have been relegated to the past, together with other mannish styles. The costume of the moment is tucked, bloused and so designed that it shows to the best advantage the curves of a supple figure. Seven, nine and even eleven gored skirts are being used, and perpendicular tuckings and strapings are taking the place of the circular flouncers women have grown tired of.

Fancy collars and odd shaped revers of panne are combined with black broadcloth, and little fancy vests of flowered silk add to the dressiness of such costumes. The shirt waist in the illustration is of pin dotted moire. The stock is of taffeta. JUDIC CHOLET.

HUGE CHURCH EDIFICE

Canon Bouillon's Plans For World's Greatest Structure.

EIGHT YEARS SPENT IN DESIGNING

Architect Priest of Ottawa Estimates That the Building Will Cost Twenty Million Dollars—Hopes to See It Built in New York City—The Dome to Be an Imposing Feature.

Canon G. Bouillon, primicer of the basilica of Ottawa, designer of the most elaborate ecclesiastical edifice in the world, which he hopes may be built in New York city at a cost of not less than $20,000,000, was visiting friends in New York recently. While at the parish house of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, in Brooklyn, he told a reporter of the New York Times of his eight years' work in preparation for what he believes will be counted the greatest accomplishment of his long and active life. The Rev. Father Bouillon is one of the foremost churchmen in Canada, as his title tells, and an architect of about twenty-five churches in the Dominion, including the large cathedral at Ottawa.

The plans for the ecclesiastical building he proposes for New York city have been left in the keeping of Rev. Father Henry Beaudet, O. P., at the parish house, 863 Lexington avenue. It is the desire of the author that they be placed on exhibition in some public building, so that New Yorkers, particularly those who will be in a position to aid in the movement to secure funds necessary for the construction of the edifice, may inspect them. They are for a structure which would surpass in many ways the world famous St. Peter's of Rome and St. Sophia of Constantinople and the Rev. Father Bouillon says, would attract visitors from every part of the world.

Father Bouillon was born near Quebec and was educated at Ottawa and at the University of Montreal, taking his theological course at the latter institution. When a lad at home, before he was sent away to school, he drew pictures with chalk and pencils, making copies and drawings from original subjects, his work usually being in the line of designing houses.

When he took up his theological studies and visited churches, he took to making architectural plans for cathedrals. His study of the work was so thorough and he developed such striking originality of general designs and features that he was called upon for plans for many church buildings. During all of this time he traveled much, going several times to England and the continent, visiting all principal cities and particularly the big cathedrals.

St. Peter's at Rome was a peculiar inspiration for him in his architectural work, and when there and in Constantinople in 1883 he was first filled with a desire to design a church edifice that would excel the magnificent cathedrals in either of those cities. During eight years he revised his tentative plans time and again. A few weeks ago he announced the completion of the work, which he confidently believes will be known as his greatest.

Describing his plans for the great church building for New York, Father Bouillon said that the structure will be more imposing than any cathedral in the world. The foundation and framework as planned will cost between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. The decorations and features of embellishment, all of which have been designed in great detail by the author of the general plan, will make the total cost of the completed building about $20,000,000.

The predominating and imposing portion of the building, according to the plans, is the dome, which is 400 feet high inside and 500 feet from the ground level to the summit, upon which rests a cupola having a diameter of thirty feet. Inside the vast dome will rise uninterruptedly above all, and a complete view of the entire structure can be had from the doorway. There will be eleven chapels on all sides, each 35 feet in diameter and 100 feet high. The entire length of the structure is 500 feet and the width 400 feet. The seats for the worshippers are to be arranged in circles about the altar in the center of the great room.

Father Bouillon's plans call for decorations of mosaic work, set with precious stones, throughout. The inside of the dome is lined with work of this character. Besides, there are thousands of pieces of statuary both inside and outside of the building, representing saints, angels and other symbolic figures. The room is to be lighted with seven wide rows of windows, representing the seven gifts that enlighten those who believe.

Four semicircular naves will surround the dome, encircled by an imposing row of windows. On the gable of each window there is a chalice, and between the gables are saints who adore the holy sacrament. The idea of the designer is that the structure shall be a church in honor of the blessed sacrament and the illustrative decorations be in accordance. The great dome is supported by four pillars, each fifty feet in diameter and provided with columns and niches, with reliefs of the doctors of the church. Other mosaic pictures will be representative of the Lord's supper and the miracles of Christ.

The name suggested by Father Bouillon for the edifice is "Nova Santa Sophia."

Dr. Lorenz's Yell. Miss Floyd, the talented yell writer of the University of Sacramento, is now working on a yell for Dr. Lorenz's clinics, says the Chicago Tribune. The words are: "Rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, rah, Lorenz, Lorenz, Hip, hip, away!"

FOUR LETTERS AND

A POSTSCRIPT

[Copyright, 1901, by A. S. Richardson.]

Miss Patricia Douglas to her dearest friend, Miss Nellie Taylor:

Longhurst-on-the-Sea, July 13. Dear Nellie—To think that just one year ago you and I were having such times here together and now you are actually working in noisy, dusty New York! Perhaps you are somewhat comforted by the fact that every one thinks you tremendously clever and good to help your father in his hour of trouble, but I should think, my dear, that business and all that sort of thing would be such a bore to a woman.

Of course you want to know about everything and everybody. Well, it's the same old place and very nearly the same old crowd, particularly the men, who are distressingly few and far between. You remember that stupid little Jimmy Barton we enjoyed snubbing last season? He's quite a go to this year. Even the shape of his nose has changed a bit, and he has a perfect love of an automobile. I've had several spins with him already. I'm so glad I bought that red coat. It makes a stunning contrast to his dark green auto.

I was lucky I brought my golf clubs and suit for the links are in splendid form, and Jack Ferris, the crack golfer, is here. He says my shots are very clever for a woman. I am not sure about the shots, but I know that little frilled sun-bonnet is so becoming. And Jack Ferris has eyes for something above golf balls. I found that out last night when we sat out two whistles in the turret corner of the porch. Remember the turret corner, Nell? I thought you would. You've been there often enough, dear knows. I wore my green crape. It might have been the safe green against the white should-ers, or the moonlight on the water, or the Mexican waiters the orchestra played, but Jack certainly did lose his head. I was so shocked, for of course he knows of my engagement to Ned. But then, men who are perfectly sane in town during the winter months go quite mad under a summer moon, especially if the moon goes behind a cloud.

By the way, in his letter today Ned says that he cannot take his vacation this month. I know the dear fellow is so disappointed. He has planned to be here with me. Don't you know, Nell, he is as kind to him, Nell, as you can be and console him in my absence. You'll find him the best of company on all occasions. Devotedly, PATTY.

Miss Nellie Taylor to her dearest friend, Miss Patricia Douglas:

Platt Building, Wall Street, New York, July 15.

My Dear Patty—Your newsy letter did make me think longingly of old times for a minute or two; but, after all, New York's not half bad in summer. For me it is like looking at a new side of life. The offices during the day are breezy and cool, and at night mother has all sorts of ridiculous surprises concocted for me. She has turned the roof into a miniature summer garden after the household column of an old lady's journal. There are easy chairs, tables, shadowy cozy corners, palms and rubber plants and I mean plants. I am becoming shockingly slangy since I came down on the street. We spend most of our evenings on the roof. Ned has been up several times, and we like him. He brings his guitar—your never let me hear him play—and what with his music and singing the popular songs of the real roof gardens and mother mixing delicious punch we imagine we are quite giddy.

Last evening Ned took mother and me to one of the continuous houses. Such a night! We were going to Manhattan Beach. It is great fun, after all, to feel that you are a part of the great masses, as the politicians put it, and cannot leave town the whole summer long.

Of course I will do my best to console Ned while you are away. But you must remember this and not Longhurst-on-the-Sea. I have only evenings, Saturday afternoons and Sundays at my own disposal. Write me all the news. I do enjoy it, and so does mother. Yours lovingly, NELL.

Miss Patricia Douglas to her fiancé, Mr. Ned Goodfellow:

Longhurst-on-the-Sea, July 21. Dear Mr. Goodfellow—I am sending you today your letters, ring and photographs. I am convinced that our engagement has been a mistake. I have always held that people to be happily married must have congenial tastes—in fact, must be perfect atlantes. Clearly you and I do not come in the above class. You will believe that I am breaking our engagement for your happiness as well as my own. There are so many charming girls, and men are so easily consoled. Yours sincerely, PATRICIA DOUGLAS.

Sent by messenger from Mr. Ned Goodfellow to Miss Nellie Taylor: Room—, Bowling Green, Aug. 1. My Darling Nell—My Nell! How jolly good that sounds! I'm sending you a few roses. Put them on your desk, where they will remind you of me every minute in the day. I shall be as early this morning to bring—er, you guess what? It's a solitary, dearest, the best I dared to buy, but not half good enough for the bravest, sweetest girl in the world. Over and over I catch myself wondering how I could ever think any other girls worth nothing. Bless this happy summer in London, which has brought me the greatest treasure in the world, my affinity. Imagine finding one's affinity in Wall Street! How ridiculous—and how delightful! Yours always, NED.

Special correspondence to the Comet from Longhurst-on-the-Sea: Aug. 4. The golf links are responsible for the romance of the season at this popular resort. Today every one is talking of the engagement of Jack Ferris, the crack golfer, to Patty Douglas, who for two seasons has been a belle at Longhurst. Jack Ferris holds not only some enviable golf scores and trophies, but he also has the inside track for the Roxmore millions on his mother's side. Miss Douglas, though an enthusiastic golfer, has made no particularly good scores until she executed this brilliant little stroke in the game commonly called hearted.

Waterproof Glue.

To make waterproof glue, soak it in water until softened thoroughly, but preserve the shape. Heat slowly in linseed oil until dissolved, then mix thoroughly. To make fireproof glue, pour water over good glue and let it remain over night, then slowly melt and add white lead to make the right consistency. This will withstand fire, but not boiling water. To fasten labels to tin, take good yellow glue, break it into small pieces, cover with water and leave three or four hours. Pour off the water, place the glue in a wide mouthed bottle or put can and cover with water. Set in warm water until dissolved and incorporate the two by stirring.

NEW TROLLEY INVENTION

Single Wire Device That May Revolutionize Traffic.

IDEA OF A YOUNG ELECTRICIAN.

Thomas J. Burke of New Orleans Has Perfected a Contrivance Whereby a Double Track Road, He Claims, Can Be Operated by Means of a Single Overhead Wire.

An invention that will admit of the use of a single trolley wire for double tracks, perfected, patented and made the basis of a stock company by Thomas J. Burke, a young man of New Orleans, of the electrical firm of Bielefeldt & Burke, has been made public recently by Mr. Burke, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. Like nearly all great inventions, it makes use of an obviously simple principle, once that principle is apprehended.

The gist of the contrivance which admits of the use of but a single wire is found in the following facts: The line of poles along which the wire would be strung would be to one side of both tracks. From each pole an arm would protrude out as far as the middle of the space between the tracks and would then bend downward. The trolley of each car when set in position would stand at an angle sufficiently great to bring its tip under the end of the arm from the pole. In the model Mr. Burke has made the trolley is essentially the same as that now found on cars. It has the friction wheel, but in addition to this it has a bow shaped cross arm that is pivoted to the trolley just below the friction wheel. This cross arm may be allowed to hang with its tips down, or by means of a wire cable running to the base of the trolley it may be made to assume an erect position so that its middle point is in contact with the friction wheel above, while its tips, through smaller pulley wheels, are in contact with the wire. The bow shape of the cross arm brings its tips almost in contact with the wire, while the middle of the cross arm is the diameter of the friction wheel away from the wire.

The cross arm arrangement solves the problem of having two friction wheels pass one another on the same wire. The cars going one way would have their cross arms brought to the position where they lie under the friction wheels that run over the wire. The cars going the other way would have their cross arms hanging down, so that their friction wheels would be unobstructed from below. When cars going in opposite directions passed one another, the cross arm that was up would afford a sort of track on which would run the friction wheel of the trolley whose cross arm was down. In a belt run the cars going one way would always have the cross arms down, while those going the other would have them up. On other lines the position of the cross arm would have to be changed at the end of each run.

Among the many advantages that would be secured to a street railway using this invention would be the saving of poles and the saving of wire and power. Probably the first road on which the device will be tried will be the Thibodaux street railroad. That road will make experiments in March.

Mr. Burke is a New Orleans boy and was at one time a student at the Leche school. He has been at work on the single wire scheme for several years. Within the past few months he and Mr. Bielefeldt have succeeded in perfecting the device, which has been protected by patents.

NOVEL IDEA IN CHESS.

Living Game Planned on Gigantic Scale For Delhi Durbar.

Living games of chess are not new, but that form of the entertainment which has been half seriously, half jokingly, suggested as one for the Delhi durbar is a decided novelty, says a cable dispatch from London to the New York American and Journal. The idea is said to have been suggested by a noted Indian chess player named Khurshed Sorabjee Jussawalla, but the scheme is so ambitious that Lord Curzon hesitates about giving it his official sanction.

It is suggested that each square of the "chessboard" should be of a superficies of twenty feet, that the players should be clad in glittering silver and gold dresses, that a band should play during the performance and 101 guns be kept in readiness to be fired singly at every "check" and all together at "checkmate."

Spare elephants and camels, all trained, are to be kept in readiness to replace any who get into difficulties during the game, and the kings are to drive mortars. The "chessboard" will be 25,000 feet square.

Historic Room Now a Bath.

The czarina has an unfortunate faculty of making herself unpopular, says a St. Petersburg cable dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean. Her latest false step has been to turn Alexander II's cabinet into a bathroom. This was the room in which the present czar's grandfather wrote his epoch making emancipating 23,000,000 of Russian serfs. He expressed a wish that the room and all its contents should be preserved intact as a memorial of his great deed. It has been kept in that condition forty years, but the present czarina thought it could be turned to better use as a bathroom. So she ordered all the papers, documents and furniture sent to a museum. This has provoked a storm of resentment among those Russians, probably the majority, who are glad of any excuse for attacking her majesty.

A Desperate

Remedy

[Original.]

It happened when I was attending medical lectures. One day I went from a clinic to my room, sat in my easy chair and lighted a pipe. I expected my mother, who was coming to town, at any moment.

"Great Scott! What's that?" From my bedroom came a clear, melodious whistle. The air was, "Oh, listen to the mocking bird!" and after the chorus came an excellent imitation of the bird's notes. When it was finished, a sweet feminine voice said:

"Why don't you do your part, Billy?" My name is not Billy, and I never did any part in the song of "The Mocking Bird."

What occupied my mind was who had taken possession of my bedroom to give such a concert. I got up from my chair and proceeded to find out. The door between the two rooms opened, and there stood a very pretty girl. We stood looking at one another for a moment equally astonished. Then she executed the feminine device, taken doubtless from the bird which buried its head in the sand to avoid being seen, of clapping her hands to her face.

"There is evidently some mistake," I remarked.

"An awful mistake."

"How did you get into my bedroom?"

"I thought it was Billy's."

"Who is Billy?"

"My brother, Billy Fanning."

"Why, he's my chum. His rooms are next to mine."

There was a knock at my sitting room door. The girl shrunk back into my bedroom, and I closed the door. Turning, there was a head looking into the room—my mother.

"Dear boy!"

"Dear mother!"

Oh, if there were only a door opening from my bedroom into the hall! But there was no such door. The girl could not leave my room except by the one we were in.

"You are tired, mother, at climbing the stairs. Sit in this chair and rest." I put her in the chair and listened to and asked the usual questions after a separation.

"I haven't any refreshment to offer you, mother, dear, but if you'll just step next door to the rooms of my friend Billy Fanning I dare say I can find something."

"I don't want anything. I have only an hour to spend with you and must get right to work at your linen."

"There's not a break in it. I looked over everything carefully last night."

"And I'll look over everything carefully this morning."

She arose and was going to my bedroom. Indeed she had her hand on the doorknob when I stopped her.

"Mother," I said, with a trembling voice.

"Oh, my boy, what's the matter?"

"Mother, before you go in there I have something of importance to communicate."

"Do tell me, quick! Has anything happened?"

"Mother, I'm engaged."

"Engaged and without consulting your poor mother! Oh, Roger, how could you?"

"And, mother, my fiancée is in that room now attending to my linen."

"Your fiancée in there! Then I'll never speak to her!"

"But, mother, it's worse yet. I haven't told you all. I'm married. It's my wife who is in there."

Poor mother sank into my arms and groined.

"Mother, when you see her you'll be delighted. She's lovely. She's Billy Fanning's sister."

"I don't care who she is, I'll have nothing to do with her."

Now, I had purposely talked sufficiently loud for the girl in the next room to hear. She did hear and lent herself to my desperate makeshift. She opened the door and stepped boldly out.

"Mother, this is Miss—I mean my wife. I know you will love her and she will love you."

The girl walked up to mother, kissed her and asked in a voice into which she contrived to throw a tremor, "Can you forgive us?"

"You are a very sweet looking girl," said my mother, somewhat appeased.

"Yes, mother, and when you've known her as long as I have you'll admit she's as lovely as she looks."

The girl turned away suddenly. Mother supposed it was to hide her blushes at my effrontery. I caught a glimpse of her face in a mirror and saw that it was to hide laughter.

"Well, Roger, you've been a very bad boy to do this clandestinely, but I dare say when I hear the explanation I'll understand it all and not blame you."

"Yes, mother." Then I said to my supposed wife, who was making for the sitting room door, "Must you go so soon, dear?"

"Yes, but I've not touched your linen. Your mother won't have to give that up for some time yet."

When I got mother off, I went next door, where I found Miss Fanning.

"This is a serious matter," I said to her. "And I see but one way out of it. I offer you my heart and hand and ask you to consider my proposition as long as we can deceive my mother. Then we must be married or suffer the consequences."

We kept mother quiet for thirty days and told several lies each day. Then there was an announced engagement, followed by a public wedding.

Towns Near Newark. SUICIDE NEAR UTICA

George LaFever Despondent Over Continued Ill-
Health, Ended His Life With Carbolic
Acid Sunday Evening.

Utica, O., Nov. 17.—George LaFever, a man forty years old, with a wife and four children, who live near Martinsburg, committed suicide Sunday at the Jud. Elben barn, one mile from Utica. Mr. LaFever had been too feeble to work since last summer and his physical condition which would not permit him to reduce the debt on his property, is believed to have led to the suicide. By his side in the barn lay a two ounce bottle of carbolic acid.

Mr. LaFever whose home was about five miles northeast of Utica, told his wife Saturday evening that he intended to visit his sister, Mrs. L. Sparks, at St. Louisville. He came to Utica on his way to St. Louisville and while here talked to William Elben and others about town. He was depressed over his long illness and his inability to work. Saturday night about dusk he left town but did not go to St. Louisville as expected. Sunday evening about 5 o'clock two little girls ran into the house at Jud Elben's place on the William Hervey farm a mile from Utica and said that a tramp was lying in the hay at the barn. Samuel Evans and Mr. Elben visited the stable and there found the dead body of Mr. LaFever with the empty carbolic acid bottle lying nearby.

Mr. LaFever was an industrious man and a splendid worker when he was able to work. Some time ago he saved $400 and made a partial payment on a farm of 20 acres. His inability to meet further payments on the little farm is believed to have so affected him that he took his own life.

The funeral services took place this afternoon at the Methodist church at Martinsburg at 2 o'clock.

The deceased was born in Greenville, Pa., in 1843, and when quite young was married to a Baptist minister, who died in Iowa in 1881.

From 1881 until 1898 the deceased resided in Granville, where she was highly esteemed by all who knew her, and the news of her death was received with deep regret here. Considerable excitement was created on Sunday evening by the report that a horse and carriage belonging to Mr. Montgomery had been stolen from in front of the M. Bowser ON Roosters

He Says They Cannot
Crow at Night Save
Just Before Dawn, and Buys One to Prove His Theory to His Wife, But—

(Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.)

THE row started because of a careless assertion on the part of Mrs. Bowser. She said that when she was a girl and lived on a farm they had a rooster that often crowed at 10 o'clock at night. Mr. Bowser promptly denied that any such thing could have occurred, as nature would up every rooster like an alarm clock, and none was set to go off before 3 o'clock in the morning.

"But this one surely crowed at almost any hour after dark," contended Mrs. Bowser, "and we finally had to make people of him on that account." "Then your people were guilty of cold blooded, malicious murder!" he exclaimed. "I defy the whole universe to prove that any rooster ever crowed before the first signs of daylight appeared. He was created for the purpose of giving farmers warning that the day was about to dawn, and the idea of his crowing before midnight is simply absurd. You probably heard the squeal of a pig or the clack of a goose."

Mrs. Bowser said no more, and three days had passed, and she had forgotten the incident, when a rooster was delivered at the house in a box. Mr. Bowser appeared half an hour later and explained the presence of the fowl by saying:

"We had a little dispute the other evening. You contended that a rooster crowed any time he took a notion to. I protested that such was not the case. I propose to prove that nature never makes a fool of herself."

"What is the odds to us whether a rooster crows before or after midnight?" she asked.

"It is a great deal to us. In the first place, the study of natural history is "In the rooster we behold nature's handicraft. When she created him, there were no clocks. He was meant to take the place of them. No farmer needs a timepiece of any sort to tell when daylight is approaching. Always and invariably at 3 o'clock in the morning the rooster—"

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" came in elation notes from the back yard.

"Our clock must be about seven hours slow," quietly observed Mrs. Bowser as she looked up.

"What do you mean by that, madam?"

"Why, it isn't quite 8 yet, and still your rooster is crowing."

"I deny it. What you hear is either the yawn of a street peddler or the howl of a dog. The sound is no more like the crowing of a rooster than black is like white."

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" shrieked the fowl.

"Poor street peddler, poor dog!" sighed Mrs. Bowser as she rose up to make a retreat upstairs.

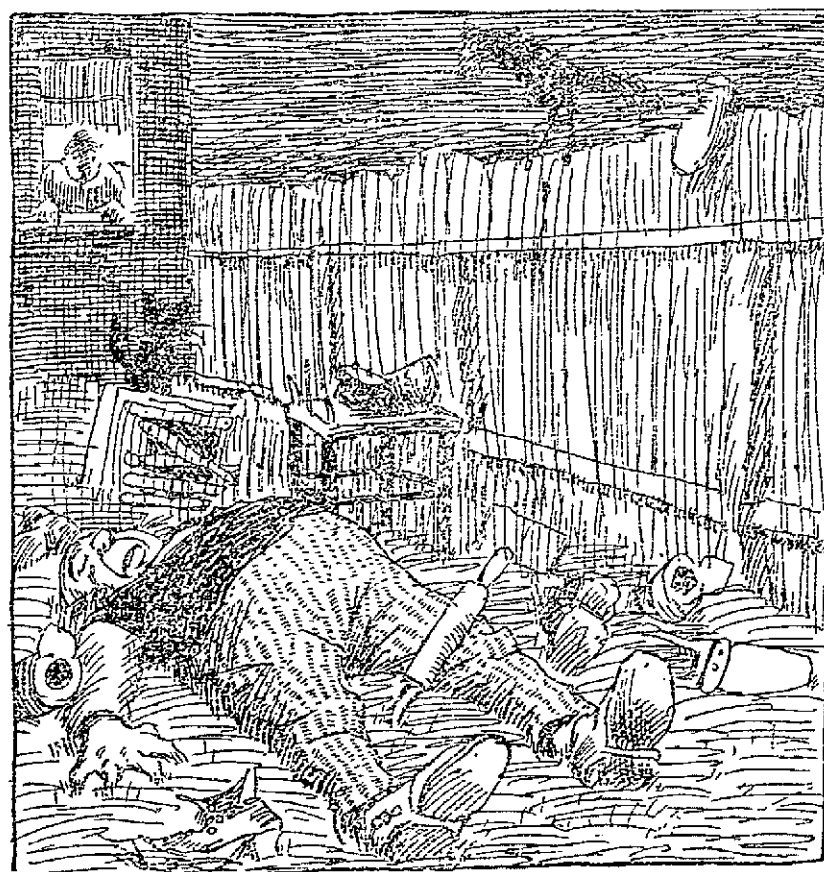

"Stop, woman!" shouted Mr. Bowser. "You are inclined to be sarcastic at my expense, but it won't work. A few evenings since you had the audacity to assert that a rooster would crow at any hour of the night that suited him. I contended that such was not the case. I have gone to the trouble of bringing home a fowl to disprove your assertion."

"And he is crowing before 8 o'clock in the evening."

"He is not. He hasn't crowed once. I tell you that the sounds you have heard emanate from—"

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!"

Mr. Bowser's knees gave out, and he had to sit down, and Mrs. Bowser made her escape. She had been gone two minutes when he rose up with his an interesting one, and in the next I don't propose to be bluffed down from my position. This rooster will be placed in the back yard. I will prove to you that he won't crow before the clock strikes 3 in the morning. If anything, it will be half an hour later than that."

Mrs. Bowser refused to dignify the matter by asserting or disputing, and kept as far away from the subject as she could during the dinner hour. The box containing the fowl was placed on an old chair in the back yard, and Mr. Bowser sat down to his evening paper and cigar with a self satisfied look on his face. It had come half past 7 o'clock when a sudden sound lifted him off his chair. From the back yard there was a cock-a-doodle-doo that by no means could be twisted into the cry of a peacock or the grunt of a pig. It was the crow of a rooster, and while Mrs. Bowser turned her head away and smiled Mr. Bowser stood up and growled out:

"It's a nice time of night for a peddler to go around yelling out potatoes!" "Are you sure it's a peddler?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Of course, and he ought to have his neck broken. It's a mighty singular thing that a man can be hiccoughed to—"

"Cock-a-doodle-doo!" came the sound again, and forty-nine people out of fifty would have made affidavit that it was the crow of a rooster. Mr. Bowser turned pale and held his breath, but he was resolved to die game.

"I beg pardon, sir," said the cook as she came from the kitchen. "But I think your rooster is either homesick or has got cold. At any rate, he is making a great fuss."

"It is not the rooster at all," boldly replied Mr. Bowser.

"Then excuse me, sir. I thought it was, and I thought you might want to give him a dose of medicine."

The silence that fell upon that room for the next three minutes was something awful. At length Mr. Bowser broke it by saying:

teeth fast clinched and his ears working and made his way to the back yard. The rooster greeted his appearance with a long drawn "doodle-doo," and a man in a third story window backed it up by shouting:

"Say, old man, if you don't wring that rooster's neck or shove a rag into his mouth there's going to be trouble!"

The rooster crowed again, and Mr. Bowser had to admit to himself that he was no 3 o'clock in the morning bird. He wasn't ready to admit it to any one else, however. He opened the door of the box and gave the fowl a nudge that knocked the breath out of it, and after five minutes returned to the house. He had scarcely entered it when that same cock-a-doodle-doo sent its echoes over the neighborhood.

"By the great horn spoon, but I'll have his life!" growled the naturalist as he turned about and looked for a hoe handle or a broomstick. Twice more the captive raised his voice in challenge to the cunts and rats and neighbors, and Mr. Bowser had just reached it with murder in his heart when the homestead began. From all the back yards on the block came breakbuds and cans and bottles, and one of the earliest of the lot struck the naturalist on the ear, and he lay down on the frosty grass and felt wheels buzzing in his head.

When they had ceased to buzz, he was seated on a chair in the kitchen with Mrs. Bowser holding the camphor bottle to his nose. As he roused up and looked at her for an explanation she quietly said:

"There is very little to relate. You brought home a rooster. His clock-work was out of order, and he began crowing seven hours too soon. The neighbors didn't like the pitch of his voice, and they have torn down our back yard fence, cut all the clothes-lines, killed the crower and given you a letter for a week to come. Don't you think you had better go to bed and rest your tired head?"

And he followed her like a lamb and never uttered a word.

CAPTAIN GUY JONES' PLAYING.

The playing of Guy Jones, a Newark boy, captain and tackle on the Denison university football team, on Saturday, was never excelled in the history of football in Granville, and he more than upheld all the sacred traditions of Denison teams. His work on the offense was magnificent, and in tackle back formations when he carried the ball, he never failed to gain, but on defense his play was marvelous. When Wooster had the ball Jones played behind the line, and time and again he broke through or went over the opposing forwards and nailed the runner frequently for a loss. On one occasion he played the whole game and single-handed prevented Wooster from winning the game. They had forced the ball to Denison's five-yard line where it was put in play for the first down. Eddy was sent against Denison's right tackle, Jones saw the play and hurried across center getting Eddy for a gain of only a yard.

Again the ball was put in play and Wallace started with fine interference around Denison's left wing. LaRue was neatly boxed and the Wooster halfback looked good for a gain. Suddenly Jones flew through the air and got his man from behind with one of the most spectacular flying tackles ever seen on any gridiron. Wallace had not made more than a yard.

Wooster was desperate but so was Jones, who was playing behind left tackle. The play was started around the other side but the Denison captain broke through and threw Lucas almost without gain and it was Denison's ball. Jones playing during these three downs could not have been better, and he would have prevailed against any team. Another time when Lucas had got around Roberts, and was sprinting for a touchdown Jones by a flying tackle just missed him, but threw him off his stride enough to allow Flannagan to get him. It was Captain Jones' day.

DENISON'S FATAL ERROR.

That Denison did not win Saturday can be attributed to poor judgment. Wooster's touchdown was a direct result of this error in judgment. It was Denison's ball well in her own territory. They were six points to the good. Two attempts to gain had failed. It was common sense and good football to punt, but Rondebush, after consultation with Jones, gave a signal to rush the ball and of course Wooster held and got the ball. The next three successive plays resulted in a touchdown. Wallace made 17 and 20, Acton 15, and Eddy went over. It is inconceivable that this mistake should be repeated, but nevertheless it is so. Rondebush is cool and collected and runs the team well, but numerous ladies, who at times became as excited as the male spectators. The game was called at 2:50 with Denison defending the west goal, Captain Guy Jones having won the toss. Wooster kicked to Johnson who fumbled on Denison's 30 yard line and it was Wooster's ball. Lucas went through Cherney for five yards, and then after advancing 10 yards more, Wooster fumbled, Denison securing the ball.

Jones gained 2 yards through tackle and made it first down on the same play. On the next scrimmage Flannagan was given the ball and behind fine interference ran up to the scrimmage line. Here his team mates pulled and dragged him through and getting a clear field ran 65 yards for the first touchdown in 6 minutes. Jones kicked goal. Score, Denison 6, Wooster 0.

Rondebush returned Wooster's kickoff 20 yards before being downed, and Flannagan made 15 through tackle. Wooster was given five yards for holding, Van Voorhis tried but failed to gain and it was Wooster's ball. Wallace advanced the ball 20, and after being tackled was slugged by Wymer, who was disqualified, Roberts taking his place. Wallace and Lucas made 4 and 7 respectively the latter being downed by a magnificent flying tackle by Jones.

The ball changed hands several times and finally after attempting twice to gain without success, Capt. Jones tried Wooster's center on the third down for three yards, losing the ball on downs.

Wallace then ran 20 yards, repeated for 17, Acton carried the ball 20, and Eddy was pushed over for Wooster's touchdown, at the extreme edge of the field. Curry punted out to Eddy who heeled the catch, and Lucas kicked a pretty goal. Score Denison 6, Wooster 6.

The play in the second half was mostly in Wooster's territory and on four occasions they brought the ball down to Wooster's 10 yards line, where as many times Wooster braced and recovered the leather on downs. This was the fiercest kind of playing and aroused intense enthusiasm.

Vance replaced Roberts during the second half, which was shortened to 20 minutes. Captain Jones, Flannagan and Johnson played star games for Denison, while Wallace, Eddy, Captain Lucas, and Miller were towers of strength to their teams.

The teams lines up as follows:

Denison: Larue, lb; Jones (C), lt; Howell, lg; Hixson, c; Patterson, rg; Cherney, rt; Wymer, re; Rondebush, qb; Flannagan, lhb; Van Voorhis, r hb; Johnson, fb.

Wooster: Acton, lb; Todd, lt; Miller, lg; O'Neill, c; Hagman, rg; Spenser, rt; Abberly, re; Curry, qb; Wallace, lhb; Lucas (C), r hb; Eddy, fb.

Score, Denison 6, Wooster 6. Touchdowns, Eddy, Flannagan. Goals from touchdowns, Lucas, Jones.

Umpire and referee, alternating Riddle, W. & J. Carter, Buchtel. Timers, Hills, Wooster; Wall, Denison.

Linesmen, Graham, Wooster; Shultz, Denison.

SPANISH WAR

An Important Meeting of Licking Camp to be held on Tuesday Evening.

Newark can boast of having the first camp of Spanish-American War Veterans in the State of Ohio. The men of the late Spanish-American war at the close were very enthusiastic for an organization and several were formed. The Spanish-American War Veterans is the largest of these several soldier associations and urged at their last National Association held at Indianapolis last September the consolidation of all Spanish war societies under one head and several of the organizations appointed committees and gave them full power to act to that purpose. This committee resolved to meet after the elections had been held so that there could be no political action taken and try to consolidate. This committee is now in session.

The matter of a new name will come up and it is hoped that the organization having the largest membership will be recognized in the name; if so this means that the new organization will be the Spanish-American War Veterans of America.

Licking Camp of this city with a membership of over one hundred has for the past year been negligent. Many members have failed to attend the meetings and there seems a lack of interest in the organization. If the members would take an interest and attend the meetings Licking camp could be made the best in the state.

Tuesday night, Nov. 18, is the regular meeting at the Memorial hall. Matters of importance will be taken up. It does not matter whether you have been attending meetings or not, but come any how. Let there be a good attendance. In all probability the meeting night will be changed so that members who have other engagements for Tuesday night can attend. Every member of the camp should be there tomorrow night.

Hanged By Mob.

Elizabethtown, Ky., Nov. 17.—Marlan Hixson, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Robert L. Reid, was hanged by a mob Sunday. The mob consisted of from 50 to 75 men, some of whom are supposed to have come from Lenoire county. On account of their number they had little difficulty in getting Buckles from the jail.

SAD DEATH

Of Francis Henrietta, Bright and Interesting Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McMillen.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. McMillen, the latter of whom is the well known B. & O. express messenger on West Main street, in the West End, was darkened on Saturday by the wing of the Death Angel. Frances Henrietta McMillen, the bright and interesting youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McMillen, aged 6 years, died at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon after an illness of only one week with membranous croup. The funeral, which was private took place this forenoon at 10 o'clock, and the remains of the loved one were laid away in Cedar Hill cemetery, under the falling rain that seemed to drop in sympathy with the tears for the loved and lost.

Little Frances was an unusually lovable and attractive child, the light and joy of her home, and her untimely taking away will leave an aching void in the home circle that nothing on earth can fill. She was just at that interesting age when children begin to develop their latent powers and possibilities, and are therefore doubly interesting. But she has been taken like a half open bud from the pitiless storms of life to bloom forever in faceless beauty in the immortal garden of the Lord. Amid the darkness and gloom of this great sorrow the afflicted parents and friends have the consolation of knowing that their loved one is forever in the arms of Him who said: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

HORSE KILLED—Sunday Mr. B. Hurlbush, the well known liverman of this city, let out one of his fine gray teams and a car to two well known Newark men to drive to Patuxent. They returned at a late hour on Sunday night and as they were coming down West Main street, one of the horses dropped at the corner of West Main and Sixth streets, and died in a few moments. Mr. Hurlbush valued the animal at $100. It is not known what caused the animal's death.

Major General Chaffee reached Chicago today.

Roberts-Garrison.

Mr. Edward Lee Roberts, a well known young farmer, residing with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Roberts, four miles west of the city, on the Hebron road, and Miss Clara Rebecca Garrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Haag, of Washington, C. H., were married on Wednesday, November 12. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents in Washington, C. H., and was performed in the presence of the immediate families of the contracting parties and a few intimate friends. The happy couple were the recipients of many useful and valuable presents among which was a check to the bride from her brother who has been in the Klondike regions for some time, for $1,000. Mr. Garrison, her brother, was the South African correspondent of the Ohio State Journal during the Boer war, and was on his way home from Alaska to attend the wedding, but was delayed, and was unable to get here in time to witness the ceremony.

The bride is a most charming young lady, and for the past two years has been in the employ of the government at Washington, D. C.

THIS IS TRUE.

The wise outlay of money is in a permanent home. There the family comes together daily after the stress and storm of life as to a refuge. The possession of a home, however humble, gives one a sense of permanency, of vested rights, awakens public spirit and patriotism and arouses emulation. It is a foundation on which to build, a point from which to advance. Every flower enhances the value of the home and endears it to the heart and memory, hallowed by a tender association, endeared by recollection. See W. D. Fulton in regard to choice building locations. His terms will suit you. A nice new seven room house for sale. The West End is the place. 11-14-4266aw 41

Mr. Forry had been very ill in Texas and a few days ago was brought to Columbus by his daughter, Mrs. B. F. McMillen, and placed in Mt. Carmel Hospital.

The funeral will take place from the home of B. F. McMillen 66 Maholm street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock under the auspices of Newark lodge, No. 97, F. & A. M., Rev. L. S. Boyce officiating. Interment in Cedar Hill.
